Foreword

Each page of the Brookline High School "Murivian" unfolds a record of youthful endeavor. We feel sure that the labor spent on it has not been spent in vain but will ever serve as a history of many pleasant days.

This year our high school tower was burned, and with it went the Old Building, a familiar landmark ever since 1895. Despite the difficulties caused by the loss of this section of our school, both faculty and student body carried on with high courage. That is the spirit we would exemplify herein, and as a memorial for all time we have adapted the silhouette of the Old Building to our inside cover. We also found inspiration in the pioneering spirit of the Sagamore Indians, first settlers of our town, who have furnished the theme of this annual.

So we submit the fifteenth "Muddy River Annual" to all our friends, in the hope that they will derive from it some of the sincere pleasure which we found during our high school days.

MISS ELEANOR R. JOHNSON

Dedication

We of the Class of 1937 wish to acknowledge our appreciation for the guiding genius of our class yearbook. Because of her sympathetic and helpful interest in various school activities, both in and out of her English classes, Miss Eleanor R. Johnson has earned our sincere gratitude for her friendly and progressive spirit. May this dedication be a lasting symbol of our high regard for her.

WILFRED H. RINGER
Head Master

Faculty

Let these pages remain forever as witness to the respect and admiration we have for the teachers of our high school. Difficult and fatiguing as their work may be, they have maintained a continually high grade of instruction. To them, as a group and as individuals, we pledge our unforgetting gratitude.

– In Appreciation –

Miss Lula G. Adams, head of the Spanish Department and director of numerous successful Spanish pageants in our school, has become endeared to all who know her. She has contributed largely to the advancement of Spanish in Brookline High School. But with her international connections and acquaintances her repute extends beyond the confines of our walls.

We are proud to have known Miss Adams, who may serve as the finest inspiration in the world. She has been true to her work and to herself; she has done much more than we can ever repay in words; she has lived so well as to enjoy much and be loved by the many she chanced to meet. Of all we have gained from our studies, perhaps this is the greatest lesson—would that her gift of service be true of us, too.

In Memoriam

Here lies the memory we ever bear for them,
Our cherished friends, the pioneers of distant lands,
Set on these pages like an all-enduring gem,
Forgotten not nor dulled by time's harsh shifting sands.

To them we build no mighty monument of stone,
No sacred shrine of veined marble nor of wood.
We carry deep within our memories alone
The love that they inspired for goodly brotherhood.

From this small seed a greater will for giving grows,
Verdant with faith and hope to soothe our mortal strife.
Here lies the memory we ever bear for those
Who, in their death, have given us a better life.

Class Poem

At Sunrise

MELVIN FREEDMAN

We are a world made of Apollos small,
Each with his sun to blaze across our sky,
And those who rise to conquer send to all
Much-needed light and warmth and growth from high.
But many brave sun-charioteers must fail
Who cannot keep their ardent steeds in check,
Like Phaeton, and lead a flaming trail
Across the blue skies in a burning wreck.
Each must be firm of heart and sure of hand
To guide his glory with its fateful flame,
And he who is will write on every land
For ever an imperishable name.
O youths ascendant, strong and brilliant yet,
Strive boldly on until your sun shall set.

Farewell, dear Brookline comrades Of best remembered years, We
The golden sun is set-ting U-pon our high school days, And part u-pon life's journey With mingled smiles and tears. We'll we with sorrow see at last The fading of its rays. But meet the life be-fore us With hope of high suc-cess, Beler us not be saddened, A-nother sun will rise — A lieving that the key we hold Will lead to hap-pi-ness.

President's Address

WILLIAM O'HEARN

TEACHERS AND CLASSMATES:

Our traditional Class Day exercises over but a short while, we are gathered together as a Class for the last time before graduation. The thoughts and emotions with which we look forward to the completion of our high school career are as varied and as numerous as the faces before me. One feeling, however, is shared by all. It is a feeling of heartfelt gratitude and indebtedness to those who have made this hour of triumph possible; to the townspeople and members of the School Committee for providing us with a superior school, to the members of the faculty for their continued high standards of education, and particularly to our parents whose sacrifices have resulted in our enjoyment of these privileges.

Because of these advantages and because of the high attainments for which this class is already noteworthy I do not hesitate to predict that some future reunion will find us upstanding citizens, each attaining success in his particular calling.

I, then, extend my sincere good wishes to the members of the Class of 1937 and remind them that this happy occasion and the even more important event a week hence are but incidents in a career that involves the whole of life. Before each of us must constantly be some goal to be reached—some ideal to be achieved. How well Tennyson expressed it when he said:

"O young Mariner,
Down to the haven,
Call your companions,
Launch your vessel
And crowd your canvas,
And, ere it vanishes
Over the margin,
After it, follow it,
Follow the Gleam."

Class Oration

SAMUEL LIFF

In all probability this may be our last complete meeting together. It is, therefore, altogether fitting that we reflect somewhat on what we are to do, what we are to become, and what we must fulfill in order to assume our rightful place in society.

Unbiased perception reveals that the vast majority of people are subservient, not to what they would aim at, but to what drab conventionalities of contemporary life demand. This is a false situation. Samuel Adams recognized that "every man is the sole judge of his own rights." And that is why I say that we must employ initiative, will power, and judgment, if we are to overcome the seemingly insuperable barriers before us. Our struggle with these barriers will be easier than it has been for those who graduated during the last decade. Since the World War there has been a great revolution in human affairs, and we—graduating in the year 1937—are placed on a plane far removed from that of our predecessors. Our view of the future can and must be saner—our attitude towards that future, wiser.

We see that those who have attained any measure of greatness or distinction have been men and women who have followed fixed ideals. They have adhered inflexibly to conscientious principles: honesty, integrity, prudence, perseverance, high morality, love, and truth. We could do no better than to pattern our lives after theirs. It is a necessary task . . . a task all embracing and all pervasive. And we, as members of a dynamic society, must have a special regard for these ideals if we are to experience "a successful and truly good life."

Congenial with this spirit, Emerson wrote: "Men of character are the conscience of the society to which they belong." Not only is it our privilege, but it is our daily duty to consider that in all life's circumstances, pleasurable or otherwise, the conduct of each of us affects, more or less, the happiness of others. Self-denial for the good of the whole is the dominant ideal, and one to be pursued diligently.

None of these mandates can be overlooked. Each has in itself a full meaning gleaned from the bitterness of experience. Together they form a body of guiding principles from which we can, from which we must, imbibe the inspiration and power to model our lives. Let us hold to these thoughts. They provide us the means whereby we can distinguish ourselves. They are our heritage. Florence Coats, in her "Song of Life," presents an impressive word-picture of all of our hopes:

"Give me of thy fullness Life,
Pulse and passion, power and breath,
Vision pure, heroic strife,
Give me of thy fullness Life."

Last Will And Testament ~

Know all men by these presents, that we, the class of 1937, of B.H.S. in the town of Brookline, and in the county of Norfolk, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being of sound mind and memory, except "Goofy" Cuetara, for whom we feel unable to vouch, but knowing the uncertainty of this life, do hereby make, ordain, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament, hereby revoking any and all wills heretofore made by us.

After the defraying of our just debts, and after paying undertaker Joe Crowley for funeral expenses, we hereby give, devise and bequeath – viz:

First : We leave Miss Sawyer and Mr. Downing our deepest gratitude for the years of friendship and guidance they have given us.

Second : Stanley Livingston, the fastest man in the school, leaves one slightly damaged set of training rules to anyone who wishes to follow in his track.

Third : John Magle leaves his modesty to Lloyd Allen, who can use it.

Fourth : Ruth Gillerman and "Biff" Liff leave Leonard Cohen and Betty McCabe to take care of Brookline's future dramatic attempts – well anyhow – attempts.

Fifth : We leave as an example to future generations, our idea of the composite, perfect girl: having Martha Trufano's eyes, Jane Replogle's hair, Charlotte Weinstein's nose, Elinore Green's smile, Shirley MacMillan's figure, Dorothy Elpert's clothes, Barbara Feldman's personality, Jean Barkin's versatility, and the whole, blessed with Mildred Krueger's "clubby" attitude.

Sixth : We leave to coach Harry Brown a little booklet entitled "Foot ball In Six Easy Lessons"

Seventh : Mel Freedman leaves his scholastic record, his honorary varsity points, and his prize speaking ability to his kid sister, Norma – what could please his parents more?

Eighth : We sadly leave our Alma Mater – Lee Hartstone sadly leaves his Alma.

Ninth : To Robert Lundblad, we leave a copy of Miss Hannon's "Wake Up And Live"!

Tenth : Dexter Hyman leaves the Marshal Force with a new constitution – and a bad case of indigestion.

Eleventh : "Bud" Waldstein and Dick Murray leave their all-around ability for the school to remember sometime when B.H.S. is behind 14-0 at the half.

Twelfth : "Bill" O'Hearn, our popular and capable leader, passes the torch to Bob Berman.

Thirteenth: To the lunchroom, we hereby bequeath one goodsized cucumber for the lettuce and cucumber sandwiches.

Fourteenth: "Bill" Cheswell leaves his polish to be used on the desk tops of the new building.

Fifteenth: We leave, wondering why "Sandy" Sachs spends so much time in dark-rooms . . . .

Sixteenth: We leave, wondering why ——

Seventeenth: WE LEAVE !!!

We hereby nominate and appoint as executrix, Miss Allen, and request that she be exempt from giving any surety on her bond as such

Lawyers: Lawrence Gordon, Myron Alexander, Pauline Miller

Witnesses: Charlotte Brest, Barbara Kivitz, Morton Braunstein

Class History

JANE ADAMS SANFORD J. SACHS
EDWARD M. MILLER

Amid the white-fleeced clouds on high,
The happy hunting-grounds are spread,
Where dwell the braves of time gone by
And Muddy River maidens tread.
One night the tribes were feasting late,
When Chief De Soto saw afar
A stranger in a Ford V-8,
And asked his son, "Who's in that car?"
Before the lad could speak a word,
The coupe drew up and blew its horn.
From Big Chief's lips a "How" was heard;
"What brings you here, O Injun born?"
The copper-colored smoothie said,
When first he doffed his crew-cap soiled,
"The reason for my being dead
Is having for this history toiled."
The jovial chief then settled back
To hear the tale of this 'ere bloke.
He also passed the peace-pipe black,
Though Heaven's minors shouldn't smoke.

The tribe was very bright indeed;
The Honor Roll records much praise,
For we knew how to write and read,
But only Agnes got all A's.
In Roberts tribe upon the shore
The braves were eating ham and rye.
More big-shots than had been before
Topped off the meal with Alpha Pi.

The school has witnessed many plays;
Some good, some bad, and stuff and things,
But most, while sitting in a daze,
Just spurned the joys that drama brings.
Yet "this year's crop of actors" brought
New life for our dramatic nights.
Biff Liff, Bill Cheswell and San Sachs
Mort Braunstein, Kuppy rose to heights.
Not only did the lads stand out,
But "swanky" Ruth and "windy" Gail
Were worth a test by Warner's scout.
Much admiration did prevail;
Both "Smilin' Through" received a shout
And "Death's Vacation" one big hail.
In oratory, Roberts' clan
Had representatives indeed.
Three years, three pals, Bill, Mel and San
In Prize Speaking did well succeed.
Among the girls was Gillerman,
And Hannington just took the lead.

In thirty-six, September gave
To us a welcome very "warm"
For o'er our school a fire did rave,
And candid-camera men did swarm.

In swimming, Connelly did his best;
Ed Miller and Jim Johnson, too.
With Eskin and Lou Bloom "abreast"
McDonald helped the team come through.

Now Captain Mooney gave his all
With "Beadeye Fitzy" by his side,
In top-notch rounds of basketball
While cheering rooters yelled and cried.

To glory with the pigskin ball
Did Captain Murray lead his men,
Helped by Nurse Cleary's little Paul,
Bud Waldstein, Finck, and Robinson.
Phil Belson and Mort Myerson,
Lee Hartstone, and Pa Malkin's boys
Became (because of work well done)
Coach Harry s very prides and joys.

Stan Liv with speed "burned up the board,"
Hal Sklar and Schreider leaped through space.
While in the shot-put Nagle scored,
And Weinberg placed in many a race.

On hockey rink the boys were great,
With McInerney as the star.
Frank Hofer made the "icemen" rate,
And Murray helped our team go far.

In golf, McDonald led our team;
His clubs he swings with stoic calm,
And he did play a game so keen
To cause the champ, Bob Jones, alarm.

Braganti catching curves and hooks
Was captain of the baseball field.
Bud Waldstein's twirling brought pleased looks
And what a "willow" Blood could wield.
Now Burnes and McInerney played
To bring much honor to our team.
We know that they have been repaid
By worthy praise and high esteem.

This year the courts were packed and crammed
It made a racket of the game
Bud Price the "racquet" in his hand
Made other teams look very lame.
Phil Cassidy and Jackie Byrne,
Bud Brightman and Warshaw were hailed
As champs, which was their just return,
Who in their task have rarely failed.

Our maidens were the sporty kind
They shone as female athletes do.
Our Aggie was the swimming find
And Phyllis was some mermaid, too.
Jean well surpassed the hockey team
And Angie starred in basketball
In tennis, Gibby was the cream
Of Dean Road in the spring and fall.
Right here and now it must be said,
Though certain names are versatile
That repetition is our dread;
So this is how we foot the bill.

When we were only "pappi *" small,
A change was made within our school.
The School Committee did install
A House Plan shared with student rule.
So out with old and in with new!
For Shailer, Sawyer's habitat
Had one head master; Roberts, two,
Where Gifford, later Downing sat.

For four years, President O'Hearn
Was V. P.'d by that Miller girl;
A little lass, who, as we learn,
Was Red Cross and the Girls' League "pearl".
Virginia Bowser helped much as Assistant Marshal-Captain small.
This Council Secretary has Made no overt mistakes at all.
And then there's Shailer's President
With Mexican hat that hides his face.
Say Bill, please tell us what's the rent
On that sombrero with its lace.
As Captain of the Marshal Force
Deck Hyman shone, so it appears.
He also made the stands go hoarse,
While leading Brookline's rousing cheers.
That handsome, bashful Nagle guy
Is Roberts' Chief Executive;
But was Chief Justice, followed by Judge Cheswell, the conservative.
At French Club meetings he presides,
His accent one of La Sorbonne.
But wait! Jack Churchville now confides
That he is Spain's best favored son.
Pauline calls Laury Gordon "coz".
It seems they're cousins, tenth removed;
But we can say that Boss he was,
And that the German Club improved.
A name we're sure will never die
Is Melvin Freedman, who, we knew,
Not only broke the P. F. I.,
But edited the "Sag" also.
For two years the Debating Club
Insisted on his leading them;
While Alpha Pi and English Club
Elected him as their main stem.
Jane Adams and Miss Kornfield worked
On Brookline's great newspaper staff
The "Sagamore" they never shirked,
And seldom cut their work in half.

With his accustomed slang the brave
Completed then his tale and said,
"For this my body's in the grave,
But then, I've got my Ford instead."
Big Chief De Soto soon replied,
And stood before the rising sun,
"Come here, small boy; sit by my side,
And join your former pals in fun."
"But tell me why they're here, smart guy."
The answer came back, "Well—ahem—
To write this history made you die;
The reading of it finished them."

• The School Council is the Congress of our high-school government. Its ambitious and successful purpose is to make B. H. S. a leader in culture, refinement, self-discipline, and scholastic attainment. This aim is achieved mainly through representation composed of the five House presidents, five House representatives, five teachers, and the captain of the Marshals. It is notable that the Council is largely a student body and that the faculty members are elected by their associates. All are especially "swell" people. These representatives have voiced the school's needs and desires with the result of much commendable improvement. Due to the work of the Council, the former plan of mid-year and final examinations has been restored. The idea of a student ticket to cover all school activities has also been considered. Delegates from the Council represented our school at a School Council Convention in Eastern Massachusetts. Thus the year has been spent to the greater glory of our Student Council.

• The Marshal Force supplies the school policemen, most of whom serve as "traffic cops." But their official duty is to enforce the laws of the School Council, a service performed with little complaint or reward but with notable success. This year a new and more democratic constitution was drawn up by and for the Force, ensuring more representative management. And, of course, this year's officers were the best to be voted for any school. So the army of armbands marches on, ever vigilant in the enforcement of justice. We pride ourselves on being one of the few schools with such a successful system. The responsibility its members show toward their duty can be read in the faces below. As for popularity, ask any member of the high school; you will receive a heart-warming response. We salute the Law!

• The Court of Justice is the judicial branch of our student government, being composed entirely of students assisted by a non-voting faculty adviser, Mr. Chester M. Downing. Including those people who have appeared before the Court, everyone has a deep respect for our law-interpreting organ. So its purpose of instilling respect for school regulations and helping those who have broken school rules to re-establish themselves in school life has been nobly accomplished. Officers and non-office-holding members may be viewed above. They are a pleasingly representative group, all of whom have gained valuable experience in matters judicial. For the work that they have done and the good name they have maintained, we are proud and grateful.

• Alpha Pi was first organized in 1918, and the worthy group was created, quoting its venerable faculty adviser "To stimulate pupils to attain a higher grade in scholarship and to increase participation in extra-curricular activities. The society is composed of student leaders who have shown versatility and excellence of effort in student affairs. With a large-sized roster of forty-one members, this has been a gala year for our honorary society. Although only eight points are required for membership, the norm was well over ten. At the November initiation Dr. Roberts spoke reminiscently of his B. H. S. days; at the March initiation President Marsh of Boston University addressed the group. Constitutionally speaking, one amendment and one new requirement were proposed with a Junior committee appointed to investigate the awarding of points in sports. Here, indeed, we have in our honorary society the cream of the student body.

has been well played. The thirty-sixth annual Scholarship Dramatics production, "Death Takes a Holiday," was the culmination of the efforts of all presentations. But the recent trend of the school toward insufficient co-operation with this worthy cause of boys' scholarships has raised a question as to whether Scholarship Dramatics will be abandoned and another means of raising money found. Those members of Speech classes interested in dramatics and attaining a grade of B or better are eligible for membership in the Dramatic Society. The plays presented offer an opportunity for varied talents; in fact, the Dramatic Society has proved itself to be a worthy starting place from which many students have achieved greater roles and success in acting. This year three one-act plays were presented: "The Travelers," "The Playgoers," and the "Road to Poplars." All were favorably received. • For many years now, the Stage Staff of our School has received little or no recognition. Theirs is the job of erecting and striking the sets, sometimes three at one show. They have to arrange scenery, lights, and props. • For over thirty years the J. Murray Kay Prize Speaking has been an annual feature. The prizes, an award and a selection of books, are provided from the fund established by the late J. Murray Kay of Brookline. The purpose of the contest is to foster distinguished work in public speaking. • The Debating Society is an important school organization, for it attempts to train for straight thinking and for ability in discussing questions of the moment with tolerance and good sportsmanship. When Newton defaulted, the debate on the minimum wage, maximum hour, question was called off. But on a later encounter with Arlington all members felt their efforts had been well spent. • All of these functions were under the experienced coaching of Miss Louise Hannon, to whom we are glad to express sincere praise.

• Girls' League has made itself known to all students of our high school by means of its active and attractive program. After fifteen years of existence the League has earned its claim to success because of the friendly bond between home and school which it has helped to create. Its snappy schedule for the year included Christmas and Thanksgiving parties; House programs and socials; mothers' teas; eighth grade, acquaintance, and supper parties and vocational talks. In addition dolls and toys were rejuvenated and jigsaw puzzles were made for the Brookline Friendly Society and the Massel Memorial Hospital. As the boys said, "Those Girls' Leaguers are everywhere!" Added to the good done by the formidable League is the feature of strong organization in the group. Its Advisory Council, Home Room Committee and Executive Board have kept it a well-knit unit. The Board for example is made up of four officers and one representative from each house. The result is to make the League's action more representative, more popular. Select advisers wise with experience guide the new freshman members to happy school life. Its nine faculty advisers, even wiser, guide the senior advisers and the League in general. Although membership is not compulsory practically every girl of any importance is a Girls Leaguer. That speaks for itself.

• The Girl Scout Troop, Brookline Troop 2, has been functioning successfully since 1917, when Mrs. Arthur Hartt gathered together a small group of girls. It is now proud of being the oldest troop in continuous registration in Brookline. This has been an eventful and well-spent year for the organization. There have been grand supper-hikes, a bicycle excursion, a tantalizing scavenger hunt with Patrol 4 in charge, and two festive holiday parties. In January the cookie sale went over with a bang, and in the same month the entire troop was busily engaged at headquarters with a Red Cross course. The event of the season was the delightful trip to Washington, D. C., taken during the vacation in February. Thirty-five girls, with Miss Poland and two other adults, experienced a most memorable and exciting sojourn in our nation's capital. At the present there are, not including officers, fifty-six members, the largest registration since organization. A goodly number of the members are active, and forty is the average attendance at the meetings. This year Gail Daly was presented with the Golden Eaglet Award, a coveted honor. Through its many activities of the year, including parties, trips, and hikes too numerous to mention, our Girl Scouts have found much enjoyment and friendship. Add to this the service they have rendered the community, and you have a good idea of their value.

Junior Red Cross, the charitable organization our school, has done a great deal of good in the community and has aided National Red Cross Drive. The main purposes of this organization are to ill a sense of responsibility, to impress the need of charitable organizations, to help in times of disaster. Under the management of a capable faculty- dent staff, the B. H. S. unit collected large sums for charity. Because of enthusiastic response of the student body, the Junior Red Cross has omplished gratifying results, especially after the flood disaster. This has en a year in which the call for help has been loud and far-reaching. In case, as with the whole nation, that cry did not go unheeded. To further for distressed persons the organization sponsored in February an all-color tion picture of the German Olympic Games, which was attended by a r-capacity house. Red Cross members are relentless workers, and under sympathetic faculty adviser the group has gone far towards its goal. To future Junior Red Cross groups, we point to the '37 organization with tifiable pride. In this year's Red Cross there is a worthy model to be ulated.

• The Library Staff deserves a great deal of credit for many good reasons. First, the members are kept constantly busy helping with library work, holding a variety of social and cultural literary meetings, and contributing a well-organized unit to the life of the school. Every free period, one may visit the library and find a guiding Staff member on whom to lean in the choice or discovery of books. Entertainments held for the group included Thanksgiving, Christmas, Pantomime, and Welsh parties, an all-staff play, Mr. Cronan's reading of "Great Expectations," and a House contest with the winner treating the others to a party. For the first time in its history the Staff consisted of both boys and girls, for the two former girls' and boys' units had been banded together. The second reason for paying this group homage is appreciation of their undaunted spirit. Despite losing in the fire the newly designed library, our librarians built anew with marked and deserved success. With all due praise we honor the faculty advisers, officers, and hard-working followers of the Library Staff, who turned disaster into success. They have established both a record for the past and a model for the future.

• The Science Club, embryo brain-child of its faculty adviser, Mr. Hollingworth, and its officers, has made a hearty struggle for existence. Its weekly meetings have been filled with talks and arguments on elementary and contemporary scientific topics. Created for the promotion of interest in everyday and advanced science and an understanding of what is going on about us, the club has succeeded in stimulating members towards scientific literature, as well as helping towards dexterity in handling equipment. The Massachusetts Health Department allowed several of their very graphic films on science to be shown under the auspices of the high-school organization. The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company also showed an excellent film, accompanied by sound. With its eye mainly on the future, the club has worked to build up a permanent organization interested in all that the future offers science.

• The Chess Club has served to promote interest in the game of kings and to provide an opportunity for its members to increase their skill in playing. The result has been a form of recreation and education calling for both rivalry and skill. Our Chess Club contested with five other schools in a club tournament. Leading players were Shapiro, Alexander, and Hurwitz, who based their skill on the coaching of Miss Allen, erstwhile English teacher. At the time of this write-up a Spring Tournament was taking place to determine the club champion. No doubt one of the leaders will have won. But all members took great pleasure in testing each other's skill. They could be seen in the lunch room, bent over the all-intriguing boards. Ever so often a triumphant voice would shout, "Checkmate!"

• The Camera Club, a small but mighty unit, has an excellent record. Its purposes are to promote a knowledge of photography and to encourage sincere interest in hobbies. Under their very capable officers and the interested guidance of their faculty adviser, Mr. Jewett, the club has made splendid advancement. This year a number of professional speakers have addressed the club upon the subject of photography, and the busy members have been very successful in taking some real candid-camera snapshots. The ranks of the club swelled for one, or both, of two reasons. The newcomers were attracted (1) by the national candid-camera craze or (2) by the 10% discount on photographic supplies! These amateur photographers are to be seen at every unusual (or even usual) event which takes place. After all, snapshots are the best and most accurate recorders of time.

• The Stamp Club gives to all philatelists of our school an opportunity to improve their collections of stamps by trading and to increase their knowledge of philately. In the latter pursuit the club was kindly assisted by such renowned speakers as Mr. Sanquinetti, Stamp Editor of the Boston Transcript, and Miss Bruce, authority on animal stamps. Added to the routine meetings of "stamp-swapping" was a cinema from the Canadian government on the making of these little pieces of gummed paper for which there is only one name. Stamps—aye, there's the word—and what a source of breathless intrigue for the intrepid trader! High-pressure philately calls for the essence and quintessence of diplomacy. The club is content with nothing but the best, and the consequence is a sense of barter sharpened to a needle's point. This has been the contribution of our Stamp Club to character. Worthy, indeed!

• The Orchestra and Band presented a challenge to the literary staff. We were confronted with the problem of writing 661 words about them, a staggering task. And then there appeared on our editorial horizon this gem, written by the school's own head of music. The opportunity was too good to pass by, so here is the original and authentic write-up. • "The purpose of the orchestra and band is to furnish an opportunity for the individual to gain training and experience in the study and performance of a wide variety of instrumental music. Real appreciation of an art or of any activity is immeasurably increased through participation in that art or activity. The hard work of study and rehearsals has its compensation in an aroused interest in music as an expression of emotional feeling and in the sense of achievement through accurate coordination and cooperation with others. The development of self-discipline is a very important result of these activities. These musical organizations provide entertainment and enjoyment for others and give prestige to the school. The band adds color and interest to many of the athletic events and other outdoor programs, while the orchestra serves in a similar capacity for various programs presented in the auditorium." • The Orchestra played fewer sour notes this year than ever before. The result was to decrease absentees on auditorium days and increase the school's honor rolls and general health. The audiences in assemblies leaned back in their chairs with sighs of pleasure. The people presiding on the platform, sensing this attitude in the listeners, orated with greater ease and effect than ever before. It was in the minds of some auditorium-goers to present a bouquet to the conductor of the group, but the movement died when all popular funds were exhausted in giving to the Junior Red Cross. Humanity first! But the Orchestra already felt amply rewarded with verbal bouquets from its friends. Student Concert Master White said: "A thousand thanks for your congratulations. This is indeed an occasion!" This harmony extended regularly throughout the year and on special occasions such as radio broadcast, Scholarship, Dramatics, and our own Graduation Exercises. In addition, the Orchestra played for several non-school affairs and won general commendation. • As for the Band, to hear it is to love it. Every time our football team lost a home game, the fans found consolation and fighting spirit in the Band.' Culmination of this spirit resulted in a musical union of Brookline and Newton on the occasion of the Thanksgiving day game. In addition to certain remarkable programs in Roberts Auditorium, the Band also swung into tune during the hockey games in the Boston Arena and on Class Day of this year.

On every occasion it was a pleasure to see and hear the mighty instrumentalists, so much so that we of the "Murivian" have added candid-camera shots of the Band in action. Particular joys to behold were the cymbal-playing of Feffer, the oompah of tubaists Friswold and Wright, and the booming of bass-drummer Anderson. In addition, the ensemble had a completely new and dazzling number of formations. Their numerous white slacks, skirts, and sweaters were seen to troop into initials for every visiting school in a manner which showed careful coaching and practice. Throughout the entire football season, the fans were well entertained by the Band and cheer leaders. So we pay homage to the Band. • Massed together, the several music organizations comprise one of the largest extra-curricular activities in the school. And because Alpha Pi gives to participants one-half point per year, there has been a constant supply of potential musicians. Of course, we must not overlook the instinctive desire for self-expression of every artist, but spurred on by the material reward Brookline High School is now near the top of the musical heap. So we have reached the six-hundred word goal. We hope we have shown you some of the many reasons for our estimation of the Orchestra and Band. The work they do is not easy, but their accomplishment has been great.

• The Orpheus Ensemble celebrated its second birthday only this year. As a present for the occasion, recognition was given it by Alpha Pi in the form of a half-point credit per year towards the Honorary Society. In requesting this credit the Ensemble, represented by its senior head, Mr. Burbank, disclosed its glorious history, which included many instances of playing for outside groups. These were composed largely of Brookline grammar schools, so, to please the demand for an extra-school function, entertainment for our own B. H. S. was promised. The Ensemble differs from the Orchestra in that it is a small group in the French style of boudoir ensembles. Its music is surprisingly fine; so good, in fact, that we of the "Murivian" need not perjure ourselves in order to praise these players.

• The English Club, founded in 1934, has grown rapidly. Meetings and excursions are the two factors which promote for its many members a social and literary interest in the English language. A grade of B or better in both English Literature and Composition is the only requirement for membership in this organization. The ranks of the club are made up exclusively of Juniors and Seniors, who readily offer their services. With efficient student planning, cooperation from all the members, and its sound financial basis, the society has enjoyed a most successful year. This year particularly the gatherings have held a special interest for the members. In the early fall, a Longfellow program consisted of readings of selections from the poet's works. At this meeting each member answered the roll call by a quotation from Longfellow. A trip to the Wayside Inn again made the club Longfellow conscious. An amateur afternoon gave members an opportunity to read original poems, short stories, and essays. Travel talks by Wiley Vaughn and Francis Niccolls came in the middle of the season. In February the three upper Houses enjoyed Mr. Flemings' recital of Elizabethan, Victorian, and modern songs. The last gathering of the year was a gala trip to Concord and Lexington, where the club visited "the rude bridge that arched the flood," the famous Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, and the home of Louisa May Alcott.

'The world stands out on either side
No wider than the heart is wide;
Above the world is stretched the sky,—
No higher than the soul is high.
The heart can push the sea and land
Farther away on either hand;
The soul can split the sky in two,
And let the face of God shine through.
But East and West will pinch the heart
That cannot keep them pushed apart;
And he whose soul is flat—the sky
Will cave in on him by and by.

• The French Club was first established many years ago, but its growth has been sponsored by the French Department. The club offers its members greater means of appreciating the beauty of the French language and the interests of French history and culture. Through such an organization the members hope to promote a bond of understanding between the people of America and the people of France. French students of the three upper Houses with a grade of B or better are admitted to membership, while first-year students with a grade of A may join at the end of the first semester. Throughout the meetings of this year the members have presented several plays, recitations and readings, and films of French travel. A French Club orchestra under the direction of Susan Godoy has been started. The last meeting of the year was opened to the whole school and the Faculty. The program showed the work done by each of the four classes in French in connection with the French Club. The two projects of the last half of the school year were the presentation of the last meetings and the establishment of L'Atelier, the club's honorary branch. Membership in L'Atelier is limited to Juniors and Seniors who are receiving A or B, who have taken part in the activities of the club and have shown a special aptitude for French.

• The Spanish Club, in these days of Pan Americanism, does its bit by stimulating interest in the Spanish language and the Spanish American peoples. This organization tries to create as native an atmosphere as possibly by having its meetings in Spanish homes. • The Spanish Club, unfortunately, suffered the most from the fire. All the records and data of the society were lost, but at its second meeting the history of the club was related to the members, so that they might regain some of its brilliant past. All the valuable things which Miss Adams had brought from Spain were destroyed. But in spite of this severe handicap the Spanish Department has carried on as before. An acknowledgment is made to "La Prensa," the Spanish daily newspaper of New York City, which, after the catastrophe, contributed to the Club much interesting material concerning Spain and Latin America. • This year the activities of "El Circulo" were varied and always interesting. The program was composed of short dramatic sketches, songs, musical selections, guest artists, and travel talks. The two most important events were the Columbus Day Assembly Program, rehearsed under most difficult conditions, and the Spanish Fiesta, held in honor of Pan America Day. Described as an "artistic success," the program included many short selections and a lyrical one-act tragedy by Marquina entitled "La Morisca," which dealt with the expulsion of the Moors from Spain. Short musical pieces by the talented members of the society, the much applauded Mexican Hat Dance, and the well-acted play made a most enjoyable evening for the audience. The program was truly a climax for the activities of the hard-working club.

Nada temo: lucharé, venceré.' Jacinto Benavente

La hermosa Grecia no puede olvidar que en la Edad Media España supo defenderla contra sus enemigos: la prestigiosa Constantinopla sabe que la espada de los guerreros españoles flameó sobre sus cúpulas y detuvo por un siglo la media luna ante la cruz de Constantino: el mundo americano murmura que los españoles tuvieron la revelación de su ignorada existencia, y exploraron el Amazonas, y subieron los Andes y fundaron esos coros de ciudades extendidos desde la Carolina hasta Chile y el Perú: hazañas todas gne despiertan un amor exaltado a la patria española. • The German Club sets a high ideal in a better understanding of the German Language and customs. Its ranks are made up of a selected group of honor students of the second year, and all of the entire third-yard class who desire membership. • Several years ago the German Club developed from meetings held by honor students of the German classes. The association itself was not formed and organized, however, until 1926, when, under the guidance of Miss Bailey, the first German Club was officially recognized. The association has been active since then, changing its leadership, upon the retirement of Miss Bailey, to Mr. Friedland, in whose trusted hands it has remained since 1934. For five years the club was a member of the Greater Boston Association of German Councils, until this league dissolved. During its entire existence the meetings of the club have been meant entirely to increase linguistic ability in this language, and all gatherings held this year have had this ideal. • Since the German department was formerly located in the third floor of the Old Building, all the records of the organization were destroyed by the fire. This year there were six meetings, of which the Christmas party and the last gala meeting were open to all students of the German Department. Those two gatherings were replete with German music and songs, speeches, and selections.

• The Sagamore is the official news-organ of Brookline High and the authoritative record of the important proceedings of the school year. Its headlines usually present the contemporary sport, while dramatic and other organization activities take a slightly subordinate position. Having a circulation greater than usual, the "Sag" has appeared regularly every Friday morning with its graphic account of the school news. Once a month its four pages were doubled by a magazine section, vehicle of serious expression for those with literary leanings. Cartoons, illustrations, photographs, and guest editorials all enlivened the weekly, whose main point of pride was fresher news than ever before. The Staff is appointed on the basis of ability and interest in the paper. Adding freer make-up to its many good features, the Staff won for the Sagamore a Columbia prize denoting excellence of publication. At a cost of five cents per issue, one dollar for a year's subscription, the Sagamore has become a permanent fixture with a forty-year past and an immortal future. Its creators are constantly on the watch for more news and new ideas and may be seen every afternoon flocking around the "Sag" room, 221. They deserve the success they have won. As proof of its popularity, each Friday finds countless copies not only in home rooms, but (confidentially) in textbooks!

• The Bank of B. H. S. has a very sound basis. This year the students, almost one half of our 1800 eligible depositors, banked by the school system. Each home room has its bank teller; each House, its assistant director, messengers, and bookkeepers. Under our Economic Education teacher's efficient guidance the Bank has a total deposit of over twelve thousand dollars. Are you there, Mr. Morgenthau? In accomplishing its purpose, to promote individual financial growth, our pecuniary organ has performed a very valuable service. An indispensable part of a well-rounded education is wise money management. Banking coupled with a compulsory course in "Ec. Ed." has filled this need of the students of B. H. S. To those who are responsible for this admirable system, we literates extend our verbal olive wreath. They have won a victory over incompetence and failure.

• The Lunch Room is filled every day with a horde of students, ready to fall to with their usual gusto. Here and there a teacher's head may be seen moving like a buoy, tossed about by the roaring student-stream. To these people the lunch-room staff must daily present wholesome yet attractive food. And to Mrs. Potter goes the credit for accomplishing this feat. Headed by Miss Marie Gebauer an adult staff of eight, some of whom can remember when the lunch room was in the basement of the old building, take care of the culinary end of the work; the more menial tasks and that of ticket selling and collecting are given to thirty students. These students must be passing in all their courses and must be endorsed by their respective House masters. They receive remuneration for their labor, in addition to the useful experience of employment. The lunch room is perhaps the most popular room we have in the school. To reach it, marshals take great delight in leaving class five minutes early, although they little relish the job of lunch-room duty. The problem of keeping the floor of our cafeteria unlittered has been especially perplexing, but it will soon be completely solved by the many capable workers of the lunch room and by the cooperation of the students themselves.

Sports

• Football has lived up to its ideal, to create a spirit of sportsmanship in good, clean contests, for the team has achieved a record worthy of a sportsmanlike group. Again this year the team was coached by Mr. Brown and Mr. Roman, handling the backfield and line respectively. They gave to the squad, besides their expert coaching, constant locker-room, pre-game advice and encouragement. Not expecting a championship team, the school turned out for the games in large crowds, rooting for a squad whose final standing showed one victory, one tie, and six fighting defeats. Many members of the squad were veterans of the previous year: Bud Waldstein, Mort Myerson, Irving Robinson, and Dick Murray. From this year's record it is easy to see that the team did well, considering all its losses by injury. At the beginning of the season Barry, a promising end, was lost for the rest of the season, and but a short time later Waldstein, whose loss was keenly felt, was forced to leave the team not to return until the last games. As for individual stars, Bud Waldstein clearly shone above the rest, in spite of his handicap. A born football player and quarterback, he engineered his men with the smart precision of a field general, punting on the average of 50 yards per kick, constantly enlivening and encouraging the team by his words, and adding consistently to the aerial attack by his left-handed passes. Dick Murray, this year's captain, was outstanding, too. He was forced to shift his position from end to back in the middle of the season, but nevertheless kept right on in the face of odds throughout the whole season. Morty Myerson, a scrapping little end, could always be found at the bottom of the pile with "Senator" Robinson on top. Lee Hartstone, with his blond hair waving through no fault of his own, made the first team in his first year out for football. The backfield also included Paul Cleary, who could always be counted on for a good gain; Cliff Fitzpatrick, who contributed his prowess to passing and expert ball-carrying; Gale Foster and Richard High, who also saw active service. A family affair resulted in the battle for line positions as Moses and Jacob Malkin took over tackle and guard berths, while Arthur Handler, Robert Beal, Ira Berman, and Philip Belson alternated at the other positions. Center duties were divided among Irving Robinson, Tom White, Marshall Finck, and David Frieze. At the ends Morton Myerson, Tom Campbell, Tom Gulley, and Dick Murray shared the honors. These are the outstanding players, but the entire squad played to its limit. In this case their best was not enough, but we fans appreciated the relentless will to conquer. No doubt the future will reward our hopes. Thrills? Exciting moments? There were plenty of them, but two in particular stand out. The first was in the Quincy game, when with the score 2-0 against Brookline and the ball on the 20-yard line, Bud Waldstein dropped back alone. Naturally expecting a pass, the Quincy team, completely foiled, was astonished to see the pigskin spin in neat fashion, end over end, across the bar to make the score 3-2 and to give B. H. S. the game. The second came in the Newton game with our boys behind, 13-0. Paul Cleary caught a Newton punt on his own 30-yard line and, dodging the entire Newton team, unaided ran 70 yards down the sidelines for a most spectacular touchdown to put B. H. S. back in the running. • RANDOM REMEMBRANCES: The snowball fight between halves at Newton . . . The new uniforms . . . Art Handler's Carnera feet . . . Bud Waldstein's 60-yard punt at Rindge . . . Those 2 points at Milton . . . The day at practice Coach Brown investigated a solitary figure sitting high in the grandstand with papers in his hand, thinking it to be a spy. It turned out to be Mort Braunstein, the ambitious Manager, reading "Liberty" . . . That 3-2 score at Quincy . . . Special mention to Coach Frank Ball of the Jayvees for a good season. We'll be watching your boys on the Varsity next year . . . "Mirabile dictu": the goalposts stood up all season!

• Basketball, with great aspirations that almost came true, started out on a season's campaign that proved to be quite successful. Coach Bemis, with a fine nucleus of players, began the season in grand style by running up a winning streak of five straight games before bowing to Newton. The Red and Blue hoopsters were constantly at the head of Suburban League and their close, thrilling games were the feature of the season. Surely a record of eight wins and three loses is not to be shunned, and not until the last game were the Bemismen out of the leadership in the Suburban League. • The Red and Blue basketballers proved to be the great drawing card of the winter sports. Handicapped as they were by lack of sufficient practice time, they made up for this loss in spirit and extra punch, so that in spite of the fact that they were able to do no better than third place in the Suburban League standings, they can boast of a top-rate team which ranks with the best of them. Basketball is a game of split-second breaks, and but for the reversal of a few of these breaks, the Red and Blue team might have reached a higher perch. With only two lettermen graduating, the prospects for a championship outfit next year are not at all remote. • Brookline can boast of a great player in the person of Captain "Tuey" Mooney, who constantly led the Red and Blue to victory. He was slight but loaded with dynamite and leadership. He became the high scorer for the team in league competition, took second position in the Suburban League, and was the recipient of a place on the All-Suburban League team. Cliff Fitzpatrick was almost as bright a luminary, for he too played a great game throughout the season. He placed second as high scorer of the team in league games and third scorer in the Suburban. For his fine work, he also won a position on the All-Suburban League second team. Harry Braganti, Brookline's fighting guard, also deserves mention as a fine player. His consistency and stability proved to be a backbone in the Red and Blue's campaign. Dan O'Neil, Al Langenheim, and Milo Brown also contributed some creditable playing for the success of the team.

• The Baseball Team, with the coming of spring, has again gone into action and proceeded in quest of Suburban League honors. This year the Red and Blue nine have been quite hard hit in the matter of vacancies, and the situation is by no means an easy one. The Red and Blue have always been able to boast of a good nine, and while results for this year are dubious, Coach Fitzgerald should be able to field a worthy team. With the addition of two, top-rate schools to the Suburban League the going will prove a bit harder, and so the Brookline team will try their best to make a creditable showing in the new company. • Captain Braganti is the chosen leader of the ball and batmen this year, and to back him a number of veterans have returned. Among these are "Bud" Waldstein, as the long-tried boxman; Cliff Fitzpatrick at first base; Bill McInerney at second base; and Frank Hofer, the only outfield man to return. Around these men Coach Fitzgerald has to build his team, which, we hope, will be a pennant contender. After a slow start the Red and Blue nine should show to advantage, and with a little seasoning, they will be able to stand in for their share of games, which may or may not carry them to a championship. At any rate, the baseballers will be in the fight. With the rise of baseball in schools, the Brookline team will be out to gain new honors. With support, they should be at the top.

• The Swimming Team of Brookline High School has for several years been very successful. This blessing to sport fans has been due to the hard work of the natatorial coach, John Coutts, and his mermen. The purpose of the crew has been to build up healthy bodies through clean competitive sport and to present to the students of Brookline High an outlet for enjoyment and for the display of school spirit. The team participated in many dual meets and two exciting annual meets in which the outstanding high school teams of New England were entered. At the Harvard Interscholastics, Captain Buddy Connelly won third in the dive, followed by Pewee MacDonald. Dave Eskin placed third in the 100-yard breaststroke, while the free-style relay team, composed of Miller, Cooke, Moore, and Connelly, came fourth. Providence High School won first place while our group, with a total of six points, finished fifth. At the Meehan Interscholastics, held in Pawtucket, Rhode Island, Brookline ended in sixth position with four units; the well-balanced Providence Central High again won with twenty-four points. Robert Muir, a member of Lincoln House, came through with a third place in the 100-yard breast-stroke and Connelly also received third in the dive in the Harvard Interscholastics. In the meet against the Harvard Freshmen, Eskin won the 100-yard breast-stroke in the exceptional time of 1 minute and 15 2/3 seconds, just two seconds away from the Harvard record. Furthermore, this was the only dual meet in which Buddy Connelly was defeated in diving this season. Although every merman could not possibly score in the two most important meets of the year, each one fought his hardest for the team. Notice in the pictures, the inflated chests and arm muscles, signs of accomplishment.

• Ice Hockey, by a popular demand of the student body of B. H. S., has been once again brought into the spotlight. Mr. Bates of the faculty was chosen as the mentor of the team, and Brookline, clad in striking red and blue jerseys and stockings, with white pants, returned to the hockey wars in a big way. With no facilities to speak of, Mr. Bates and his charges faced serious opposition, both from other teams and from lack of practice. In spite of this handicap, the Red and Blue pucksters were not daunted, and with great spirit they attacked the problem of making a creditable showing against the other schools of the Eastern Massachusetts Interscholastic Hockey League. The skaters of Brookline really did do themselves credit in competition when they displayed fine ability for a first-year team. That record speaks well for the team, coach, and school. The game record shows that they tied with Lexington for sixth place in the league and but for inexperience might have enjoyed a higher position. • Captain Bill McInerney, chosen leader midway through the season, was the Red and Blue's outstanding player. Showing great ability and leadership on the ice, he gained recognition on the all-league teams. Jack Byrne, also a star in the Brookline campaign, won all-league honorable mention and was the team's high scorer. Justin Burns in the goal deserves mention, too, as a worthy net-tender, while Frank Hofer made a fine defense man and forward.

• The Tracksters, led by the illustrious Stanley Livingston as their captain and "Monty" Wells as their coach, have run through a mediocre season that, while not according them state honors, left them still high in the esteem of all competitors as a team to be reckoned with in the scoring. The Brookline indoor team took their share of dual meets and fared not too badly in the state competitions. They were able to finish in the first six all the time. At the various meets, the Red and Blue colors were always flying, even gaining recognition at Dartmouth and Bowdoin. During the outdoor season the cinder men had their time taken up chiefly by state meets, and while not able to be a contender for the crown, they were, nevertheless, in for their share of the points and honor. The Red and Blue of Brookline has always stood high in track circles and while this year has been only fair, the colors have stood near the top. • Brookline can boast of at least one person who gained high state honors, in the person of Captain Livingston, who annexed the State 300 yards dash championship and was always reckoned in the scoring. His all-around running is exceptional, and his ability is surpassed by only few in the state. John Nagle also deserves great merit for his fine, field-event work. Dividing his duties between the shot-put and high-jump, he was always a top contender and a real point-getter for the Red and Blue. The running of Sumner Wolfson and Malcolm MacAskill also stands out as noteworthy.

• The Golf Team, started three years ago, is out again in full strength with just as much spirit as ever. Brookline was instrumental in forming the Suburban Golf League, and the players have always shown a team that has ranked high in state competition. With Coach Brown as their adviser, the Red and Blue clubbers are all set to annex the league title this year. Peter McDonald is the leader of the linksters, while behind him there is a group of capable golfers that should be able to bring honors to the school. In past years the Wealthy Towners have always had one or two representatives who have gained fine places in state competition and this year should be no exception. With the Municipal Golf Links at their disposal to provide excellent practice facilities, the boys should be able to rank high in their class at the close of the season. • The team has not only earned merit as a whole, but certain of the members have achieved individual distinction worthy of mention. It is of particular interest for golf enthusiasts to note that Crowley, a veteran of three seasons, has the honor of scoring the only hole in one since the formation of the Golf League. This praiseworthy feat was accomplished last year at the Brookline Municipal against Newton High's team. • McDonald and Crowley, who shoot consistently in the low eighties and represented Brookline two years ago in the State Caddy and Junior Tournaments respectively, are looking forward to being the Brookline participants in the State Interscholastic Tournament. The two best players from each team in the state are chosen to compete in this event, the winner of which is recognized as the state school champion. • Besides the playing of Captain McDonald, the golfing of Crowley, Callan and Kirraine warrants praise. Although the prospects do not seem quite so bright this year, the linksters, however, show decided signs of making a good bid for honors.

• The Racquetmen are out in full force once again, and with the courts in readiness the Brookline tennis team are ready to start on their campaign for the season. At the helm of the courtsters this year will be Captain Sid Price, a player renowned for his steadiness and leadership. On his shoulders will rest a good deal of the burden for this year's aggregation. Coach Barnes faces a task in building up a strong unit for the contention of honors against the other schools. While the tennis team does not seem to be so great at the present time, the Red and Blue will be able to show a creditable match team that should be capable of upholding the reputations of past Brookline racquet teams. • Besides the playing of Captain Price, the other places on the team are very problematical. Joseph Strock, as the winner of the fall tournament, is the only other tried contestant, and he should prove invaluable in the success of the team. Jack Byrne, Phil Cassidy, and perhaps others will no doubt come in for their share of playing and point-getting. Indications point mostly to a building-year, in which the Red and Blue, while not being at the top of the heap, will be able to show to advantage and erect a foundation for next year. • As we look at the Red and Blue racqueteers for the current season, there is a bit of doubt as to their winning honors. At any rate there is no doubt that they will be among the contenders for top honors and will be doing their best for Brookline High School.

• Field Hockey, held in the fall at Dean Road Playground under the auspices of the Physical Education Department of B. H. S., familiarizes players with one of the major sports of women's athletics. With Miss Allen as coach, Jean Barkin as captain of the first varsity team, Julie Mulvihill as manager, and Priscilla Nagle as second varsity captain, the teams played games against Needham, Choate, Hingham, Wellesley, Winchester and Newton. During the season a house contest was also completed with the Akers House girls finishing as victors. Growing interest in hockey and the keen competitive spirit which it offers tend to keep it among the most popular sports of the athletic field.

• Tennis, one of the leading sports on the regular calendar of the girls' athletic program, was enthusiastically supported by the students of all the houses. The large grcup of aspirants, under the direction of Miss Sherman, Miss Tierney, and Miss Allen, were divided according to their ability witr the racquet into beginners', intermediate, and advanced classes. From an elimination tournament, the varsity team was chosen, whose members participated in singles and doubles matches with the tennis teams of various other schools around Brookline. The primary purpose of our Tennis teams is to interest all the girls of the high school in this enjoyable sport.

• Swimming again took its place among the outstanding sports of the athletic program of the B. H. S. girls. With Miss Griffith as the faculty instructor, Agnes Walkama as captain, and Dorothy Clark as manager, the natators carried on an interesting program in the pool across the street from the school building. Besides actual instruction, there were held inter-house meets, water games and play days with other public and private schools. The large group participating were divided into two house teams under the captaincies of Virginia Stanislaus (Roberts), Ann Kelley (Lincoln), Rose Pignato (Akers), and Bernice Hogan (Packard).

• Gym Team trains the girls to develop perfect control of their bodies by the technique of apparatus work. Under the guiding eye of Miss Allen, one of the instructors, the eager participants learned to carry themselves through many difficult tasks with poise, balance, and finesse. During the winter season a playday was held in the gym with the Brookline High School girls as hostesses. Students from Winchester and Belmont joined us to compare the progress that had been made in training the body to perform tasks of body control.

• Horseback-Riding classes were held again this year, the sixth since this sport took its place among the ranks of popular athletic activities for girls. Under the able leadership of Miss Griffith and Miss Allen more than thirty equestriennes joined the groups which met in both the spring and fall at McNeilly's Riding Academy for the purpose of becoming more proficient in good horsemanship. The largest numbers came from Packard House, the first-year students of the high school, followed by riders from Akers, Lincoln, Roberts, and Shailer Houses. Frequently these riding enthusiasts could be seen jogging along the roads that lead through the less congested sections of Brookline.

• Captain Ball attracts a large group of the Brookline High School girls who are interested in spending one afternoon a week playing this invigorating and energetic sport. Besides learning the simple principles of the game, the players enjoy the competitive spirit which is created in the many contests and tournaments, which are run off during the season. By participating in captain ball, the girls have gained in addition to an opportunity for physical education, certain standards of cooperation and fair play that prove its total value.

Silverstein, Rosenguard, O'Leary, Brothers, Saklad, Croft, Linscott.

• Archery is a girls' sport which attracts a large group of the student body. Both the spring and the fall groups, under the supervision of Miss Kelley, Miss Griffith, and Miss Kane, were filled beyond capacity. In the fall the results of the tournament showed Virginia Croft, Jeannette Brothers, and Joan Wood as the highest scorers, while in a later contest the honors went to Margaret O'Leary, Frances Woodlock, and Eloise Linscott. It is surprising to find out how many of the high-school girls have acquired the delicate accuracy required for markmanship in archery. And good form or grace has been another pleasing result.

• Basketball, one of our most popular sports, is open to the girls of all the classes of the high school. Its coaches, Miss Allen and Miss Kane, have attempted to acquaint the students with the fundamental rules and the skill required for the game. The large group of participants were divided into house teams, with Angie Argus (Roberts), Alzada Small (Lincoln), Priscilla Nagle (Akers), and Janet Ray (Packard) as captains. In the tournament that was held Roberts House captured the honors. Each year basketball attracts large groups of eager aspirants who desire to play an invigorating and well-organized game.

HEAR YOUR OWN VOICE

CRYSTAL-CLEAR electrical recordings of your speaking, playing, singing, etc., that play on any phonograph. Permanent black DURALOTONE disks — an exclusive European process — are engraved while soft, then baked to make hard, lifetime records of superlative quality. Teachers find periodic recordings an invaluable incentive to progress. Ask or telephone for pamphlet.
